the next step 1. SELFIE

1. If an area (such as infrastructure or evaluation) has received a low rating, you can designate it as a focus area for development
2. If an area receives the best overall rating, it is a strength that is worth it to identify what works well and what needs further improvement;
3. Where differences can be discovered between students and teachers or between teachers and school-leaders position, it may be worthwhile to examine them in more depth.

the next step 2.

4. If you have the digital weaknesses and strengths of the school, make suggestions for improvement.
5. Compare SELFIE-based development suggestions with development suggestions made after previous online workshops. Hopefully they are very similar to each other. Where SELFIE has introduced a new development theme, align it with previous strategic recommendations.
6. Finally, think about the role your school intends to play in digital education after the COVID-19 epidemic.
